Japanese Plums.

As the time for buying fruit trees is usually in the winter, the following remarks may be timely and of interest to those who intend to buy plum trees. It is to be regretted that, as a rule, the Japanese plums which have been an important addition to the orchard fruits in other States do not fruit successfully in this climate on account of the blooms and young fruit being destroyed by the late spring frosts.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Japanese plum is adapted to a wider range of territory than either the European or native plums, and while in New Mexico the trees, as far as known, thrive and bloom profusely, yet this type of plums does not fruit nearly so successfully as the European varieties of those like Goe's Golden Drop, Yellow Egg, German Prune, Damson, Washington, and others of the same family.

In the Experiment Station Orchard at Mesilla Park twenty Japanese varieties have been tested, and since 1895 observations on their blooming and ripening periods have been taken. All of these are good, heavy, and, with one exception, early bloomers. The Ogon is the only variety that comes near being a late bloomer. It usually bears a partial crop. The fruit, which is round, medium, and yellow, crops badly just as soon as it begins to ripen. The Huachuca, Satsuma, and Kelsey are exceedingly early bloomers, while the Botana, Burbank, and Hattankio are slightly later. Occasionally a few blooms escape the frosts, but with the exception of the Ogon there has never been a crop of the Japanese varieties in the orchard, except this year. The Spring of 1900 was unusually favorable. In the absence of the severe late frosts, and as a result of this, favorable spring wind of the varieties produced a fair crop. Occasionally, the spring is so favorable that the main crop of blooms is not destroyed by the frost, but such springs are the exception and not the rule.

Enough has been done at the experiment station with the Japanese plums to demonstrate that they are adapted to our climate and their money in Japan. There are plenty of European varieties which are a success in the Territory and any one wishing to inform himself on these plums can do so by writing to the experiment station at Mesilla Park.

When the Paper is Read.
If you ask a man for an ad or a few lines he will tell you he don't believe in advertising—a paper is never read. But let him be caught hugging the hired girl or chasing a loose piece of calico up the streets after dark, or struggling with a jug of "tamarian" water, if the printing office is in the garret of a twenty story building he will climb to the top and ask the editor not to publish it in the paper where everybody will read it.—Newspaper Talk.

A Village Blacksmith Saved His Little Son's Life.
Mr. H. H. Black, the well-known village blacksmith at Grahamville, Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by Warren & Co.

Presented For the Servants.
The president of the servants' union recently made a choice of Christmas gifts for our servants is ever a perplexing one. Says The Ladies' Home Journal. Little additions to the bureau, a pair of decorated linen covers to be used alternately, a pretty pin or hairpin cushion, a brush and comb case, a whisk with ornamental holder and, as an incentive to tidy habits, a linen laundry, shoe or dust bag, an umbrella pocket or an ornamental scrap basket, for the servant who has no pride in her surroundings is more liable to be careless and less likely to spend much of her leisure time in her room. Servants, as a rule, feel complimented at any endeavor on the part of the mistress to make a useful gift; also an ornamental one.

In our thoughts for the cook it would be wise to discover her imperative needs. A warm wrapper or an garment ready made, a set of aprons, both ornamental and useful, can hardly fail to please, while a purse containing money always proves the right thing at the right time.

The Gifts They Prefer.
Women prefer some fluff gift which, despite its delicacy, is useful, while men like a little severity mixed with prettiness.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
